Texarkana Would Widen No. 67 Route

Engineers Propose — But the People Dispose

Texarkana, so the morning Gazette of that city informs me, thinks the time is ripe for widening Seventh street — the route of U. S. Highway 67. Can you imagine why Texarkana is perturbed at this particular moment? It's because there is a strong likelihood that an effort will be made to build by-passes around a great many cities. No city wants to lose any more of its tourist trade than is necessary. And so every town through which U. S. 67 passes is, or should be, looking into the traffic situation within its own borders.

Leon Trotsky Dies of Wound

Blames Assassination on Stalin, Soviet Chief

MEXICO CITY — (AP) — Leon Trotsky died Wednesday night after whispering an accusation that his pickax assailant "most likely" was a member of the OGPU, Soviet secret police.

A savage attack by a confidant felled the 60-year-old guiding genius of the Russian revolution in his home late Tuesday. An emergency operation and administration of oxygen were futile. He died at 7:25 p. m. (CST) before brain surgeons from the United States could reach him by chartered plane.

The attacker was identified by police as Jacques Morfan Vandendriessche, native of Iran. Bodyguards beat him off from the assault but not until he had driven the ax into the exiled revolutionist's skull.

Scene of the attack was Trotsky's fortress-like residence in the nearby village of Coyocan, where a machine gun attack on Trotsky failed last May.

Only hours before he died, the old bolshevik was quoted as murmuring to his secretary that "this time it is the end" and that he was sure his assailant "was a member of the OGPU or a fascist—most likely the OGPU."

Argentina Is Facing Crisis

Ortiz Government May Resign in Land Scandal

Buenos Aires — (AP) — Reports circulated Wednesday night that Roberto M. Ortiz, Argentina's sick president, and his cabinet might resign at any moment as the after-math of a long-developing political crisis precipitated by an airplane land purchase scandal.

Ortiz met his cabinet in a bedside conference—the third since last midnight—in the absence of Vice President Castillo, who had been acting president since Ortiz turned the country over to him July 3.

Some observers said the session was called to decide whether changes in Ortiz' cabinet would be necessary as the result of the report of a senate investigating committee involving cabinet members in the land deal.

British Bases Would Extend U. S. Defenses

Lease Would Extend American Defense Line 1,200 Miles

The United States is bargaining with Canada and Great Britain for naval and plane bases that would extend defense of the North American continent far out into the Atlantic. The following article analyzes the advantages this move would give U. S. armed forces attempting to defend the homeland.

By WALTER LECKRONE
NEA Service Special Correspondent

America can build new ramparts against attack from Europe 1200 miles out to sea.

Two more strongholds in the Atlantic Ocean could make impregnable the "vital triangle" between Montreal and Chicago and Washington—the triangle in which the Western Hemisphere's industries and people are most closely concentrated.

These new ramparts could protect New York, Boston, Montreal, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Buffalo, Washington—the mines and the steel mills and the nerve centers of North America—behind a wall of fire that would stretch from the Tropics to the Arctic.

One end of the wall is being built today in the Caribbean. To complete it far-sighted strategists turned their eyes toward Newfoundland and Bermuda.

Only when the British navy was threatened did Americans finally realize that without it the very heart of North America lay open to assault from the east.

With the United States war fleet, for instance, held in action in the Pacific, or blocked out of the Panama Canal passage, a hostile fleet no larger than some which exist in Europe today could shell New York and Boston from the sea. It could launch bombing planes from ships to raid inland as far as Buffalo and Pittsburgh in the Ohio valley. It could establish a base on Hudson Bay, only an hour and 30 minutes by bombing plane from the Soo locks through which iron ore moves down the lakes, and within easy bombing range of Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland.

Newfoundland Has Big Airport
The place to defend New York is not Long Island Sound, and the defense of Boston can not be over Cape Cod. If an enemy penetrates that far frightful damage would be done, even if he were beaten and eventually driven away.

The Newfoundland-Bermuda-Puerto Rico defense line would move that battle 1200 miles out to sea—if that battle ever came at all. It would form an outer wall 3600 miles long in front of North America.

United States spokesmen a month ago sounded out Canadian authorities on the possibility of leasing a base at Halifax, from which United States air and naval forces could operate. Canadian press and public gave the idea far more attention than did the United States press and public. They were in favor of the principle—but cool about Halifax. Newfoundland, not Halifax, is the place for such a base, Canadians say.

The major tends to support their view. A navy-air base on Newfoundland would fit into the defense line better than one on Nova Scotia.

From a Newfoundland base a routine patrol radius of 600 miles—practical operating zone for modern war planes—would stand like a barred gate across the route from Europe to America, whether by ship or plane. Out of Newfoundland, United States bombers, which have a range of 3000 miles, could reach the south end of Greenland, 1500 miles away, cover the now unguarded Hudson Bay entrances, the site of possible secret enemy bases on that Bay, and the Great Lakes almost to Chicago.

Newfoundland has adequate natural harbors suitable for development, already has the second largest commercial airport in North America, developed for North Atlantic crossings. Newfoundland's population, hard hit by depression and harder still by war, would welcome the expenditures such a development would bring there.

Bermuda Fits Into Plan
Second link in the defense chain is Bermuda, 650 miles off the Carolina coast, almost due south of Newfoundland.

Acquisition of a Bermuda base has been urged by Rear Admiral William D. Leahy, retired chief of naval operations. It lies perfectly into the Atlantic defense line.

Sheriff, County Clerk, State Senator Aug. 27

Three local races will confront the voters of Nevada county in next Tuesday's runoff primary.

C. D. Ward and R. L. Vandiver, the two high men in the preferential primary August 13, will battle it out for sheriff.

Brad Dewoody and Jesse W. Baker are rival candidates for county clerk.

In the state senatorial contest, which because there were only two candidates, was not voted on in the first election, L. L. Mitchell and Edward B. Bryson will face each August 27.

LaFayette county voters will go to the polls in the runoff election Tuesday, August 27, to pick a winner in two county races.

The other contest is for tax assessor, the candidates being J. Boyett Powell and William (Bill) McClendon. L. B. Fuller won the nomination.

Hidden German Guns Bombard British Coast

Shells Churn Waters as Dive Bombers Attack Long Convoy

LONDON — (AP) — Heavy German artillery opened up from concealed positions on the French coast from Boulogne to Calais as German dive bombers went into action Thursday against a long British convoy threading the English channel off Dover.

The convoy escaped without damage from the artillery fire through a smoke screen despite the churning of waters by about 100 shells from the distant French shore.

The convoy was later attacked by dive bombers, one of which was shot down.

The loss brought to even 1000 the number of Nazi planes which Britain counts as certainly destroyed since Hitler's intensive air war was launched June 18.

German air activity over Britain up to noon Thursday was limited to the customary armed reconnaissance flight informed sources said.

15 Airport Bombed
BERLIN — (AP) — The German high command said Thursday that 15 airports and numerous industrial plants, as well as port and rail facilities, were attacked Wednesday by German planes.

German air activity over Britain up to noon Thursday was limited to the customary armed reconnaissance flight informed sources said.

LONDON — (AP) — Hervort Morrison, minister of supplies, said in a broadcast Thursday night that the war effort to speed up has given Britain "an arms industry greater in its output and far greater in its future productive capacity than anyone would dare think possible three months ago."

Sinks British Sub
ROME — (AP) — A British submarine in the eastern Mediterranean, torpedoing of a British destroyer, and air attacks on a squadron of British cruisers, in which two were damaged, was announced by the Italian high command Thursday.

The air raiders who bombed Gibraltar early Wednesday were identified as Italian in Thursday's communication.

Italy Threatens Greece
ROME — (AP) — A "clash" between Italy and Greece in the "near future" was predicted Wednesday night by the Italian wireless while the Fascist press campaign against that little pro-British kingdom reached a new crescendo of violence. The wireless cited the "sharp tone" of that very campaign as indicating a showdown was approaching and remarked that this was the presumption in "political quarters."

Newspapers published assertions that Greeks were planning to burn Albanian villages in the Greek region of Chameria—a region now declared by Italy to be rightfully part of Fascist-held Albania—and that armed bands were ready, "especially in the

Candidate for Governor to Jump With 'Chute

Dr. Walter Scott McNutt, independent candidate for governor, announced Thursday that he would make a parachute jump at the Hope-Prentiss airport near here September 7, as an added attraction to an all-day air circus and political speaking.

Dr. McNutt said he would bail out in a parachute ump 2,500 feet over the airport.

The aerial circus will begin at 10 o'clock Saturday morning September 7 and will continue throughout the day. Crazy flying, spins, dives, loops, wing-overs and other stunts will be held during the day.

The independent candidate for governor plans to speak in Prescott at 10:30 and in Hope at 11:45. Mr. Adkins and Mr. Stumph, the Democratic and Republican nominees have been invited to speak.

end of the Newfoundland patrol zone, and come conveniently near shore bases already established at its western limit. It would cover New York, Philadelphia, Washington, and reach 1200 miles out to sea to intercept an approaching enemy. Long range bombers could attack an enemy fleet 1800 miles out in the Atlantic—halfway to Europe.

The third link is already being forged—at San Juan, Puerto Rico. There a powerful base is being built—one of several building or planned in the Caribbean. Another is at Guantanamo Bay, in Cuba, leased from the Cuban government.

The Puerto Rican inner patrol area, with the same 600-mile range, would cover the entrance to the Gulf of Mexico and the outer gateway to member of the Little Rock bar, and Melbourne M. Martin, prominent attorney, has charged in every county in Arkansas that the present Attorney General, who is now a candidate for a third term, has squandered more than $200,000 of the people's money on special attorney fees. Melbourne Martin also charges that the work done by these special attorneys could and should have been performed by the Attorney General himself. Every member of the Legislature, Mr. Martin says, has received a letter from him urging the complete abolition of the special fee system, which is now bleeding the public treasury of thousands of dollars that should be going to help defray the cost of government instead of going into the private pockets of henchmen of Melbourne Martin's opponent.

M. Martin Raps Opponent

Says Attorney General Has Squandered $200,000

Representatives of the present Attorney General have gone out in Pulaski County and told the people that the Attorney General is required by law to employ special attorneys, and he has just followed the law. Coming from the office of the Attorney General of Arkansas, this is a startlingly false statement, Mr. Martin insists. Every lawyer in Arkansas, Melbourne Martin says, will tell you that no power under Heaven can require the Attorney General to employ special attorneys. All the voters have been urged to consult their family lawyers for information on that point. Then they will know that $200,000 of their money has been wasted only because the present Attorney General wanted to waste it.

Of course, Melbourne Martin further points out, it is not surprising that the present Attorney General needed the assistance of large numbers of special attorneys because the Attorney General himself has never practiced law. He could, therefore, know very little about how to handle the law office of the State of Arkansas, and he further emphasized his own inability in the selection of most of his assistants, who are men of meager experience in the field of active practice.

Melbourne Martin's ability as a lawyer and his integrity as a man have been endorsed by 120 of his fellow attorneys in Pulaski County, and his 26 years of successful private law practice insure the people of Arkansas that he will serve the state with honor and efficiency in the office of Attorney General.

Local Softball Team to Play in State Tourney

By defeating the Green Castle Softball team of Texarkana 8 to 4 in the finals, Bruner Ivory won the southwest Arkansas district softball title at Hope Fair park Wednesday night.

Magnolia Oilers, also of Texarkana, defeated the Castleburgers in the consolation game to take second place.

The first game was a nip-and-tuck affair with the lead changing several times. In the seventh inning the score was tied at six runs each, but in the first of the eighth Bruner scored two runs to clinch the district title. Bruner made ten hits while Green Castle held to five. Smith, of Green Castle hurled an excellent game, but was handicapped by many errors by his teammates.

In the consolation game Magnolia scored six runs in the first inning and were never headed, although Green Castle finally got ten runs.

Bruner Ivory will play their first game in the state tournament at 6:30 p. m. Thursday, August 23, at Lamar Porter Athletic Field at Little Rock, against the runner-up of the Little Rock District. Magnolia will play the winner of the Pine Bluff District at 6:30 Monday August 26.

Weevil Control

Many cotton producers ask questions as to changes in recommendations for boll weevil, leafworms and fleahoppers. There are no changes in recommendations and recommendations details are given in Extension Circulars No. 162, 187, 231 which may be had for the asking. Calcium arsenate is the insecticide to use in weevil control and leafworms. Sulphur is the insecticide in fleahopper control. It is never recommended to use calcium arsenate when it is not needed even if there is no additional cost.

Superphosphate

Triple superphosphate may be secured by Hempstead county farmers on their soil building allowances through the farm program upon request.

The cost is deducted from AAA. The only cost to be deducted is thirty cents per one hundred pounds in many instances. This year 1845 sacks have been requested and ordered to date.

The state office advised that orders placed now for applying on permanent pastures, vetch and bur clover, will be filled soon.

All phosphates should have been applied to lespezedes by July 15th for payment under the 1940 program.

Limestone

Agricultural limestone may be secured under the farm program for soil building allowances now earned entirely for $1 deduction for a twelve ton lot delivered to any farm where roads are passable in Hempstead county.

This limestone can be delivered within the next few days. Limestone is needed and will pay on most fields and on most crops. Lime is essential in raising livestock if best results are to be obtained.

The parts played by lime in animal production are: lime is essential to every active body cell; lime influences the development of the unborn calf; lime forms 10 per cent of the solids of milk; and lime aids in keeping the animals healthy.

Recommends Superphosphate

E. G. Wright of the Rocky Mount community advises that his pasture where 100 pounds of triple superphosphate per acre was applied, has made all of three times as much growth as where none was applied.

His cattle prefer grazing the treated area and had considerable grazing on this area before the growth commenced on the untreated area.

490 Bales of Lespezea

Connie Yocom of Spring Hill has secured 490 bales of quality lespezea hay where superphosphate was applied where only 80 was harvested last year. In addition, he believes he will secure 600 more bales if weather conditions continue favorable.

Six Acres of Vetch

Vincent Foster, who planted twenty acres to vetch last year, writes the following letter relating his results:

"On a twelve acre plot of ground we planted six acres in vetch. We let this vetch get its full growth and turned it under the second week in May when it was waist high. We planted this six acres in cotton on the 23d of May. Yesterday I was on this place and the six acre plot in vetch was a fifty per cent better stand of cotton and has fruited twice as much as the plot beside it.

We have planted other areas in vetch, but the tenants did not let it get its full growth. Therefore our results are not nearly so good as they should be over the entire farm. Of course, the actual results will be known after we pick the cotton off the different plots.

I firmly believe that we will make from the increase in crop an average of $15 an acre cash profit where we planted the vetch and permitted it to get its full growth and turned it under. We intend to plant at least sixty acres in vetch on this place this fall in comparison to twenty last year and we need twelve sacks of seed."

The Commodity Credit Cooperation

recently released a schedule of location, grade, and staple differentials for the 1940 cotton loan program. The location differentials represent the actual freight between the warehouse point and the mill or port point on all cotton west of the Mississippi-river line and west of the Tennessee river in Tennessee. Differentials east of this line are zoned for the various areas.

The schedule for grade and staple differentials is based on the 16/16 inch middling description now used in both

To Warm Over Campaign Dish

Republican Nominee Adds News Flavors

BY WILLIAM B. ARDERY
AP Feature Service

OLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—Wendell L. Willkie's campaign so far has been something new in present-day politics.

The Republican nominee, who came here for what he called a "vacation," has conducted a day-in and day-out drive for votes.

He took half a dozen plane trips to neighboring states, addressed hundreds of thousands of persons, and shook hands with more thousands.

There was a constant round of interviews with politicians of both parties and citizens vacationing in Colorado Springs.

When Willkie came here, he took an eight-room apartment. At first, visitors strolled in and out and usually were greeted by Mrs. Willkie.

The callers increased so rapidly, however, that the Colorado Springs police department assigned three men to protect him.

Opens An Office

The hallway entrance to Willkie's sixth-floor apartment was converted into an office with clicking typewriters and a policeman opening mail at a small desk.

Mrs. Willkie usually was close by to greet visitors before they moved into Willkie's many-windowed living room.

Mr. and Mrs. Willkie arise early—sometimes at 5 a. m.

The nominee while here had breakfast in his apartment and then started to work.

Several times he took an early morning walk around a nearby lake, before other guests of the hotel arose.

In the evening, he often took another walk.

Willkie is not particular about food, and seldom bothers to pick and choose menu items. He likes sandwiches, and sometimes orders a plate of them before retiring.

Willing Ear For John Doe

Except for his early morning walks and an occasional brief rest in the afternoon, he has had virtually no time to himself.

His associates have been worried about his willingness to talk to persons of little or no political importance.

After a hard day of campaign talks, when reporters accompanying him are exhausted, Willkie usually remarks: "I feel fine. How do you fellows feel?"

But the nominee, even as you and I, knows the voice of authority when he hears it. In his case it's Mrs. Willkie's.

The Woman's Touch

The photographers were getting ready to take his picture the other day when Willkie, with a characteristic gesture, shot his hand through his hair.

"Whoops!" said he, catching himself. "I mustn't do that. Mrs. Willkie says I haven't had a picture taken since the Republican convention that didn't show me with my hair ruffled. We'll have to watch that, fellows."

The influence of Mrs. Willkie also is noticeable in his replenished stock of a series of newspaper pictures of him in one certain necktie.

"I agreed we should acquire a couple more neckties," Willkie said with a grin.

Lion Oil Head Withdraws from Committeeship

LITTLE ROCK — Col. T. H. Barton of El Dorado, Democratic national committeeman, withdrew his candidacy for renomination Wednesday "in the interests of the Democratic party."

His action left Walter G. Riddick, Little Rock lawyer, the only candidate for nomination at Tuesday's second primary election, although Colonel Barton's name already has been printed on the ballot.

"In the belief that the interests of the Democratic party can best be served by no division within its ranks, and that the position of Democratic national committeeman should be the unanimous choice of the party, I am requesting that my name be withdrawn as a candidate for this office," Colonel Barton said in a prepared statement.

"These are trying times for our state and country, and I urge that we all unite in full support of the administration of our incoming governor, Homer Adkins, to the end that the state affairs of Arkansas shall be most successfully conducted."

"I wish to take this opportunity to express my sincerest appreciation for the friendship manifested for me."

Colonel Barton supported Governor Easley in the August 13 gubernatorial race while Mr. Riddick was an active worker in behalf of Mr. Adkins.

Mr. Riddick is a partner in the law firm of Coleman & Riddick, both members of which opposed Governor Easley's $137,000,000 highway bond refunding program during and after the 1939 special session of the legislature.

Turkey has a pact with Greece, but Turkey is busy watching the moves of Russia and will stay out of the war if she possibly can.

Wherefore it looks as if Greece will go the way of so many little countries since the advent of Hitler and Mussolini want he demands or he bids fair to take all.

WE THE WOMEN

Woman Who Is Smugly Satisfied to Remain Just a Housewife Misses a Lot of Living

By RUTH MILLETT
It is easy for a woman to get into a Righteous Rut.
The woman who is in a Righteous Rut expects her husband to feel eternally lucky and grateful because she is a fine housekeeper and a conscientious mother.
She makes friends only with women pretty much like herself, deciding smugly that anyone who does not think as she thinks or act as she acts "isn't my sort."
She doesn't say, "Perhaps there is another side to the story." She condemns without investigation.
She laughs at anyone whose ideas or way of living she can't understand.
She not only doesn't take any part in any activities outside her home, she belittles the woman who does.
She's Content to Stand Still
She thinks and says that the woman who keeps pace with her husband's advancement in the way she runs her home and in her interests is "putting on airs."
She thinks because she has grown complacently middle-aged that another woman of her years who manages to look ten years younger is plain silly and "not fooling anybody."
She reminds her husband what a "good wife" she is more often than

SERIAL STORY

MURDER INCOGNITO

BY NORMAN KAHL

COPYRIGHT, 1939, MHA SERVICE, INC.

CHAPTER X
WITH O'Leary dragging him by the arm, Carroll reached the hot street and entered the police car. O'Leary leaped into the seat beside him.
"What's the idea, Chief?" Carroll asked.
"Sergeant, if you were a girl on the lam, how would you get out of town in a hurry?"
Carroll thought that over briefly. "Fly, I guess—sure, that's it. She took a plane. But where did she go, Chief?"
"Maybe nowhere yet," O'Leary glanced at his watch. "Twenty minutes to 2. There's a plane for New York at 2. My hunch is that Rhoda Waters is planning to take it."

THE 2 o'clock plane for New York was waiting at the passenger gate with its giant engines rumbling in monotonous melody when Carroll slid the car in front of the administration building at the airport. O'Leary bounded up to the ticket desk and produced his badge.
"Have you a Miss Rhoda Waters on that plane out there?" he demanded. An efficient official hastily consulted a chart and nodded.
"She bought a ticket a little while ago. She wouldn't have got it except that someone else canceled his reservation at the last minute."
"Good," O'Leary said. "Listen, we don't want any fuss. Have the stewardess go into the plane and tell her to come out for a minute."
Sergeant Carroll wiped his moist forehead with his handkerchief as he and O'Leary waited in the passenger room. In a few minutes, a stewardess came in with Rhoda Waters. Rhoda looked around curiously, and when her eyes fell on the officers, red flashed involuntarily in her cheeks.
For an instant, it appeared she intended to flee. Then she composed herself and walked over to where the detectives were standing. "Did you send for me?" she asked.
"Yes," O'Leary said curtly. "Stewardess, have Miss Waters' bags taken off the ship. She won't be traveling with you."

Rhoda's eyes flashed fury and her lovely features reflected the anger in her heart. "How dare you! I'm not a criminal. You can't order me around like this. I haven't done anything."
"Why were you leaving, Miss Waters?" the lieutenant inquired calmly.
"That's none of your business. I can go as I please. You've got your murderer. What more do you want? Let me go. I intend to take that plane."

O'Leary was patient. "I know how you feel, Miss Waters, and I'm sorry. But you'd better stay voluntarily. Otherwise—" The girl looked appealingly at the lieutenant and then a freshet of tears rolled gently down from the corners of her eyes. "I just wanted to get away. . . I couldn't stand it any longer. Dale knew I was going. He was going to meet me in New York in a few days. We were going to get married."

She sat down on one of the long benches. From her large, red handbag, she extracted first a handkerchief and dabbed at her tears. Then she opened a tiny make-up kit and patched up the tear-spattered rouge. "I'll go back," she said.
O'Leary patted her awkwardly on the shoulder. "That's better. I'm really very sorry it has to be like this. Murders are always disagreeable though. . . for everyone. Come on, we'll take you back."

DALE APPELBY was surprised to find O'Leary and Carroll waiting for him in the study when he came downstairs. There was a spring in the young man's step, a litting note in his voice.
"We wanted to look around once more," said O'Leary.
Dale smiled graciously. "The place is yours. Look around all you like. If there's anything I can do to help—" "You can go over the whole story again, if you don't mind," O'Leary suggested. "We want to be sure everything is straight. You can tell Sergeant Carroll all about it—in the drawing room, if you will. I'd like to look around this place once more."

When Lieutenant O'Leary was alone, he stood for a moment in the center of the broad room, and little furrows creased his brow unevenly. He looked about the room, as if grasping for something tangible—something that would give a key to the sinister mystery of Martin Saylor's violent death.

He sauntered over to the window and looked out. Idly his fingers probed the small catch that was still unlocked as it had been the night before. He turned away from the window and started momentarily when he saw another figure across the room. It was his own reflection in the mirror directly across.

There was something about the arrangement of the books in the room that bespoke Saylor's character—his insistence upon order and organization. Each book was lined up perfectly, indented about two inches from the edge of the shelf. Sets of law books were arranged by numbers, and miscellaneous volumes were all carefully placed in alphabetical order.

In the cases between the fireplace and the window, O'Leary discovered two books transposed. The entire shelf contained state supreme court decisions. Volume 1915 had somehow got squeezed between 1916 and 1917 and was jutting out about an inch farther than the others. O'Leary started instinctively to replace the heavy volume to its rightful position when he stopped.

"That's strange," he muttered to himself. "I wonder—" And then, suddenly, the lieutenant stiffened. He walked swiftly to Saylor's desk and pressed a button. Willows, the butler, appeared presently.

"Tell the housekeeper I want to see her—in here," O'Leary ordered.

LIUTENANT O'LEARY was still peering abstractedly into the bookcases when Dale Appelby and Sergeant Carroll returned to the room half an hour later. For several seconds he appeared not to have detected their presence. Then he turned slowly.

"Mr. Appelby," he said. "I'll have to trouble you once more. I want to use this room tonight, and I'd like to have everyone here—say at 8:30. Will you call them, please? Those who were here last night. And I'll want the servants on hand."
Appelby looked startled. "Of course, Lieutenant, but—" "Just a little idea of mine," O'Leary said brusquely.
Still perplexed, Dale left the room. Carroll edged over to his superior. "What goes on here, Chief?"
The lieutenant thrust his hands deep into his coat pockets and teetered on his toes. "Sergeant, this may be a very interesting evening. I believe I know who murdered Martin Saylor—and how it was done."

How to Succeed Though the Boss's Daughter, Is Saga of Blond Margaret Roach

HOLLYWOOD — Even if she is the daughter of a studio owner, Margaret Roach believes she may have a future in the movies.
It hasn't been easy up to now. Hal Roach doesn't go in for nepotism with his kids. Hal, Jr., has been held down to a well-earned, hard-working assistant directorship, and Margaret played extra and bit roles on every lot in town before she landed supporting parts in "Turnabout" and the current "Road Show" at her father's studio.
"He didn't oppose me," she explained. "He just didn't think I could do it. I don't know what he thinks she reminds him that he is a wonderful husband."
She hasn't changed her interests or taken on any new ones in ten years.
Better Sap Out of It
She reminds her children of all that she has done for them. She is convinced that she is right and her husband is wrong on any subject within the woman's sphere. She puts it this way, "What does a man know about running a house? Unless she stops putting herself on the back long enough to see that she is in a Righteous Rut—she'll stay there the rest of her life—and miss a lot of real living."

Just then an assistant who knew me came over and said, "You're wanted on the phone, Miss Roach." Boy!—you could have heard their jaws drop! Right then I quit being Diane Rochelle.

For a while I had trouble getting jobs. Agents didn't want to handle me because they were afraid my father would be mad at them if they didn't get me big roles. And casting directors didn't want to hire me because, they said, "If she's any good, why doesn't her old man use her?"
Last season at Palm Springs, lolling by a pool, she was approached by a man with a camera. He confided, "I've got connections with the Hal Roach studio and I'll send some shot of you to the casting director."
"That's nice of you," she said, "but I happen to be Margaret Roach." Startled, he took a step backward and plopped into the pool.

Today, only three oceans are generally recognized. The Arctic Ocean of 4,000,000 square miles, has been incorporated with the Atlantic as the Arctic sea. The Antarctic has been reappropriated over the Atlantic, Pacific and Indian oceans, which are the three now recognized.

WASHINGTON — The famous question of what the governor of North Carolina said to the governor of South Carolina when they did a bit of elbow bending is as nothing these days to the questions about what Vittorio Bifulco, assistant counselor on emigration at the Italian embassy here, said to prominent Italian-Americans in Washington.

It seems established that he wrote to the Italian-American leaders to meet him. It also seems established that the government at Rome sent orders that consular officers all over the United States were to advise their Italian brethren to put the soft pedal on activities of a nature to arouse anti-Italian feeling.

Rome has seen how angry Americans have become over the cavortings of the German-American Bund with its swastikas and its "Heil Hitler." So the men in authority here have been advised to slip the word that similar actions on the part of Italian-Americans are to be avoided. They are not to hold ramblous meetings and are not to flaunt the Italian flag in the faces of the public.

Bifulco won't talk

Bifulco himself has proved a most elusive personage. Efforts to get his own personal version of what occurred have proved vain. Authorities at the Italian embassy rather deprecated all the publicity and said an American mountain was being made of an Italian molehill. It was insisted that Italian-Americans were and always had been good American citizens and were in no need of tutelage as to how to behave.

Dr. Eugene Forcione, a prominent Italian-American physician and president of the Sons of Italy, was not so reticent. He said he was one of a number of men who had met Bifulco, others being the heads of the Unione Fratellanza and the Loggia Roma.

"We were simply advised," said he, "to avoid international political arguments and not to get mixed up in things which would tend to injure the good will between Italians and Americans."

New March of Unemployed Feared

A number of years ago, during the presidency of Herbert Hoover, Washington was invaded by a great number of unemployed men who proceeded to live in crude camps and stayed there until the regular army forces were ordered by Hoover to clear them out. Government and Washington city officials are very much afraid there may be another rush of unemployed men to Washington.

The giant rearmament program is the basic cause of this fear. People all over the country have begun speculating how many thousands of new jobs this rearmament program will create. Many of them think the thing to do is to get in on the ground floor when the jobs are dish- out right and they think the ground floor is right here in Washington.

It is emphasized that the government here will have nothing to do with the task of filling these jobs, nor will senators or congressmen. It will therefore be a waste of time and money to come here job-seeking.

Note, just by the way: Many prominent government officials love to eat at one very pleasant roof garden restaurant whose floor has swastikas in its tiling. But it's the old Indian swastika, not the Hitler version, and it was put there long before Hitler was heard of.

It Must Have Been the Heat

Our Furred, Feathered Friends Cutting Capers

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
AP Feature Service Writer

Our furred and feathered friends have been cutting capers.

There were the three skunks that had a merry time this summer at the Arthur Frey home near Trenton, Mo. Mrs. Frey says that they eat out of the same pan with the other farm pets and have "exhibited no bad habits yet."

The heat was on at Sedalia, Mo., when someone reported a "couple of love birds" were "acting up" on the courthouse lawn. It turned out they weren't the feathered kind. A young couple sat in the 103-degree shade knocking-in full view of a gathering crowd.

Furred and feathered creatures are not the only ones that set up in the good old summer time.

Harry Graff's turkeys were crossing a newly-oiled road near his farm at Byers, Kas.

It must have been the heat that made them decide they liked the sticky stuff. They went to roost there and roosted until the oil "set." Then they were stuck and had to be pulled almost out of their feathers.

There was last heard of . . . The war is putting a stop to foreign buying.

Babe Young, Giant first baseman, hit only two homers from April 16 to July 4. . . In the next month he hit 10. . . Larry Gardner, a right-handed knuckle-baller with Lansing of the Michigan State League, is attracting a lot of attention.

An interesting rumor one hears is that Bill Meyer, manager of the phenomenal Kansas City Blues, will replace Gabby Hartnett as Cub chief. . . Seven pitchers won more than 20 games in the major last year. Red Ruffing, Bob Feller, Dutch Leonard, Buck Newsom, Curt Davis, Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer. This year only five seem to have a chance. . . Feller, Newsom, Walters, Derringer and Al Milnar.

Frank Frisch is reported to have offered the Cubs John Gee, his $60,000 dead-arm rookie, for Ruffingsberger and Olsen. . . and got nowhere. If Harry Danning holds his pace he will be the first Giant in 10 years to win the National League batting crown.

Bob Quinn, owner of the Bees, denies he has any intention of selling the club and quitting the game. . . Points out that the team which recently won 11 out of 15 games averaged only 25 years in age.

in a cage. Jose thought he must have gone mad. Then he noticed that it was, in fact, a squirrel that Fuzzy chased.

The squirrel dashed into a hole. Fuzzy began digging furiously after him. One stone hurled in a spray of dust between Fuzzy's spraddled hind legs, struck Jose's rifle. The Jose in the elbow. And Jose nearly died from loss of blood before he walked three miles for aid and a siege in a hospital.

to get loose.

Terrapins must like the name of Smith. One has been visiting the Guy Smith garden near Fort Scott, Kas., for 17 years. Another has turned up at the Oscar Smith garden, near Lamar, Mo., each season for four years.

It must be the heat that drives them into the cucumber patch—a cool spot—because it's always a hot spell that brings 'em.

The two Smith families, unrelated, know their visitors are the same each year because they've branded the turtles with pocket-knives.

The game census hadn't counted a red fox in western Nebraska for years. But Taxi Driver Merle Woods gave chase to one in a street at Scottsbluff, and hunted it for an hour before Mr. Reynard outwitted his pursuer.

It must have been the heat that drove the fox to town from some very, very isolated hideout.

Jim Tabor Is Operated on

Red Sox Player Collapses on Playing Field

BOSTON —(AP)— Jim Tabor, third baseman of the Boston Red Sox, underwent an appendectomy Wednesday night at Brooks hospital, Brookline, after collapsing on the playing field prior to Wednesday's Red Sox Cleveland game.

Dr. T. K. Richards, who performed the operation, said Tabor's condition was good but that he would be unable to return to the game for at least a month.

With the season having little more than a month to go, the absence of Tabor, a resident of New Hope, Ark., was regarded as a blow to the fan-pennant hopes of the Red Sox, now in third place.

Nine-Day Tire Sale Opened

Goodyear Dealer Says Will Reduce Accidents

Announced this week nationally by Goodyear dealers in every city and town is a unique tire merchandising plan. Entering around the product is a large manufacturer, in the opinion of Mr. Walker local dealer, who says that for nine days, starting August 22, Goodyear G-3 All-Weather tires are being offered at new, low prices in an out-of-the-ordinary plan.

Few people need an introduction to the tire, which for years has been used by thousands, appeared as original equipment on many cars and has wide acceptance among car owners who for years have been familiar with its attractive qualities and long wearing abilities. Mr. Walker said: "That's why this opportunity is all the more interesting to motorists."

Asked about the price on a 6.00-16 size tire which 70 per cent off the regular service now use, Mr. Walker said this would be $9.99 for the nine days of the sale, adding that it would be the only time this year the tire would be sold at that figure.

Pressed for a reason as to why the tires were being offered at the price, Mr. Walker said:

"All of the G-3 All-Weather tires are affected during the sale, with prices varying from $9.99, but at considerable saving. Reason for this sale is to contribute to the safety of highways, to give motorists a break in buying tires with treads that will really stop a car."

"Weather is just ahead, you know, and slippery roads demand tires on cars now, when they can be replaced well, so in cold weather they will provide up to 20 per cent mileage than if they had been applied during the extremely hot weather."

"We are ready and willing to make inspections of anyone's tires to be sure they are highway safe. And there is no obligation involved. America's motoring death toll can be cut drastically by adoption of safety measures and good tire equipment is a logical place at which to start."

HIGHLIGHTS FROM LATEST BOOKS

World War No 1 Provides Plot For Dramatic Novel

If anything detracts from Ivan Lebedeff's "Legion of Dishonor," (Lippincott, $2), it is the fact that it was written so swiftly, to crushing and annihilating for courage and friendship between enemies. Blitzkrieg provides no opportunity to honor one's foes, however courageous they may be.

The "Legion of Dishonor," therefore, stands small chance of existence today. It belongs to World War I. Because of that, Lebedeff's story gathers the unreality of a historical novel.

Harry O'Brien, American newspaper man and volunteer in France's army of 1914, is sent on a scouting expedition into No. Man's Land to clear up a mystery of corpse robbing. In an ancient, shell-torn castle he finds the "Legion of Dishonor," a group of deserters of both allied and German armies, living in the safety of the castle's cellars.

To the Legion comes Col. Egon von Ritter, Germany's inter-nationally famous authority on strategy. Deprived of his command, his tactics disregarded, Ritter replaces his superior's orders with his own plan, loses a battle and is condemned to living death in an insane asylum. With Ritter is Conrad Stockmar, quiet, meticulous French officer.

O'Brien, Ritter, and Stockmar assume command of the Legion. Even when Ingeborg von Storm, wounded German Red Cross nurse, is brought to the castle, the even tenor of the deserters' life is not unusually disturbed.

But when O'Brien and Stockmar discover that the Germans are digging a mine under French positions, love of country reasserts itself, with thrilling, dramatic results. It's a man-sized story of men who could not forget their duty to their country.

Author Lebedeff fought with the Czar's armies during the first World War. Later, after Russia's collapse, he fought with White Russians. In 1925 he came to United States to work in the movies. First as an actor, then as writer. "Legion of Dishonor" is his first novel.

The five day school was a Waco civic project designed to help the youths understand and appreciate Americanism. Miss Hooper had been a candidate for president but withdrew when a heckler queried: "What do we want with a petticoat hanging off the capitol dome?" The campaign was staged between two strong and one independent party.

What British Battle Means

Nazi Advisors Don't Agree With Hitler

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
APP culture Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Indications have reached insiders in Washington that Hitler's battle for Britain is being launched against the advice of conservative Nazis and some German naval advisers.

The naval command is reported to have told the Nazi chieftain that the initial wave of a direct attack is likely to cost him two-thirds of the invasion force before a beach-head is established on the channel. In short, if he sends 600,000 men he'll lose 400,000 of them before he gets a perch on British soil.

Conservative thinkers are supposed to have suggested that the British can be blockaded into a peace arrangement that will establish a British totalitarian government, leaving the British fleet intact, and friendly to Germany.

The conservative argument also suggests that a direct attack risks the possibility that the British fleet will be destroyed, or scuttled, or withdrawn to Canada or elsewhere.

And without that fleet as a friendly force, Hitler stands to lose more than he gains by "annihilating the British Empire" as he puts it.

Japan, Italy Have Navies
Here's the way they figure it out: Germany has no fleet worthy of the name. If the British fleet were destroyed, that would leave the unfriendly American fleet alone on top of the world heap, with Japan and Italy right behind, in that order.

Hitler's allies, Italy and Japan, therefore, would have the means of establishing themselves as first-rate powers by grabbing control of the important posts along the routes of world empire—Gibraltar, Suez, Singapore. And this after Germany had done all the fighting, lost all the blood.

Left to Germany would be the dying duck of the world, Europe, with its war ruin, stagnant industries, and hungering millions.

Hitler has personally promised Mussolini supremacy in the Mediterranean. As late as July 19, Hitler also assured Russia that German expansion eastward was automatically limited by Russian ambitions.

And the third nominal German ally, Japan, has already told the world she'll tolerate no change in the status of the rich Dutch East Indies, and herself expects to dominate all of Eastern Asia in the future.

Thus Hitler, without a friendly British navy lurking somewhere about will have no means of preventing Russia, Italy and Japan from carrying out most of their designs in the immediate future. He has written them all blank checks.

British to Revolt?
Then why launch the Battle of England?

The key to the attack may lie in the speech of Rudolf Hess in Berlin the other day, when he said the German people hated the British and the moment was at hand finally to make a clean sweep—"to break England's power even to the ruination of the empire."

It may well be possible that the radical wing of the Nazi party and Hitler himself are convinced the British people will break under the strain of attack, revolt against their own government and set up a totalitarian state satisfactory to the Nazis. And this before the British fleet is destroyed or even menaced, leaving it intact in friendly hands.

That line of reasoning is not necessarily sound.

One of the eminent naval strategists of our time once told me the plan of British strategy in the dark days of 1917, when the nation was on the verge of starvation.

The British admiralty was asked by the American command how long the British could hold out.

"Six months before we surrender," was the reply.

Ship Building Keep Secret

The United States Is Building Them But Where?

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON—Picture of a perspiring reporter trying to get a little information out of the Navy department these days (The War Department is just as tough):

Reporter—Hello, Commander, one of my papers down at Tallahassee hears a report that you are building a cruiser named the Tallahassee. Can you tell me about it?

Commander—No, I don't believe I can.

Rep.—Well, you can tell me if there is to be a cruiser named the Tallahassee, can't you?

Commander—We are not allowed to give out any information about ships under construction.

Rep.—Well, but my paper says definitely that there is to be a cruiser named the Tallahassee. That story already is out. What I want to know is what size cruiser it is, where it will be launched and when.

Commander—We can not give out information like that.

Not By Size Alone
Rep.—Well, what kind of cruisers are there?

Commander—Why we have heavy cruisers and light cruisers ranging from 10,000 to 7,000 tons.

Rep.—Would you say that the Tallahassee is a heavy cruiser or a light cruiser?

Commander—I wouldn't. No.

Rep.—Well, is it closer to 10,000 tons or 7,000 tons?

Commander—That's a pretty difficult question to answer. You see, some light cruisers run around 8,000 tons while some heavy cruisers may be only 6,000 tons.

Rep.—Please report that, Commander, I don't think I heard you right. (Commander repeats. Reporter did hear him right.) Well, then, what determines whether it's a light or heavy cruiser?

Commander—I don't see what it has to do with this story, but if you must know, it's a matter of guns mounted . . . size, number, etc.

Rep.—Just a minute, Commander. (Reporter puts down receiver, mops brow and struggles to get control of himself. He takes a deep breath and launches off again.) Now, Commander, can you tell me approximately where it is being built? I know, I know, not the specific shipbuilding yard, but is it on the west coast of the east coast?

Commander—Wait a minute, I'll have to call on another phone. (Reporter waits.) Hello. They tell me that that is not privileged information, young man. But I'll give you a tip. All of our cruisers are being built in the United States.

"All Depends"
Rep.—(recovering from a near faint)—Well, skip it. But tell me this. Will the Tallahassee be finished this winter, next year or the year after?

Commander—That all depends. Rep.—Depends on what?

Commander—On the speed of the workmen. We can't always tell about things like that, even when there's not a national defense campaign on. You see, ship contracts don't specify the actual completion time; they just set the date limit by which the ship must be completed.

Rep.—All right, all right. Can you tell me what the date limit is for the cruiser you are going to call the Tallahassee?

Commander—No I can't. And what's more, remember you mustn't quote me or anybody on any of this. Good-bye.

Reporter bites off mouthpiece of telephone.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, benedictine and diabetes. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood.
